we give him his say. We think, however, in several instances, he is perhaps more severe than just. That there was a good deal of bad business done in connection with the big Governnent contracts of 1873-5, is too true to be pleasant to the minds of us all who desire the atilization of the wealth contained in the Granite Quarries; but we think the number engaged in the peculations of that period was smaller than our correspondent believes. Two or three bad men will sometimes taint a whole neighborhood, and our correspondent's assertion that all who went into the big contracts came out with loss of integrity is too comprehensive. But his opinions and ours are not bound to agree, his statements are his own, and the readers of the REGISTER being all men of intelligence, will read with correct discrimination.

cans tied to his tail. Thomas P. Fitz and family and "Uncle Isaac" left for St. Louis yesterday. Enjoy yourself, Tom; but keep "Uncle Isaac" out of the ditch, and see that he gets all the green stuff he wants. Be careful about the change of diet, though, from mush and milk to green stuff; for it may have a different effect on him to what it did on "Gunboat."

"Uncle Isaac" made a trip to Annapolis last week, and came back riding at an angle of 45 degrees in Al. Ed. Register-From Ironton to Iron Mountain it is six miles, and from Iron Mountain to Farmington him.

There was quite an excitement the other day in our town. Several of us were gathered together, and we saw a hat coming down the street. One of the crowd said it was Dr. Mc-Millon, another that it was a man from Wayne Millon, another that it was a man from Wayne clothed all in her garb of green, it makes a county, and another that it was Dr. Clarkson. cool, breezy, bracing drive. After leaving One of our company lifted up the hat, and, to Sycamore Avenue a short distance behind, we our astonishment, we found under it the smil-ing little face and head of Dr. David Clark-lieve the noble Ironton Cornet Band were seated last fair time, trying to blow what lit-tle brains they had through the bells of their instruments. "Noble" band, did I say? Why, Bishop was the only "Noble" boy in the crowd, and he wouldn't be such if it weren't for his name. And—Oh, yes; did you notice, on the "big day," Scoville and "Nobe" throwing kisses at those St Joe girls? And Scoville a married man, toe! And "Nobe" pretty near Farmington? Oh, yes; that's so! I think Farmington is about as big as Ironton—it may be a little larger or it may be a great deal a smaller, from all I know—as seen when I was there. I had all—and more, too, than—I could attend to in keeping the dust from my optics. Everywhere I went I heard of some depredation that had been committed by the "band boys." Messrs. Scoville and Schultz were always leaders; but "Fatty" would try to hide his little self behind Scoville—always. He's an awful blow, is "Fatty." The —always. He's an awful blow, is "Fatty." The only things he could get away with would be three or four keys of nails a day.

three or four kegs of nails a day.

We saw a house at Farmington—said to be the Court-House; we don't believe it—with posts all around the sidewalk, that had stood the wear and tear of years, and had to be tied up with chains to hold them up. The house itself looked as though chains, etc., to hold it up would not be misplaced. If the house was worth it, a coat of paint would improve its looks immensely. We have no objections to Farmington—if we had we would tear it down—so we won't hurt any of its good citizens in
